Training faith communities
to confront sexual harm

Biblically speaking there are 3 main ways in which faith communities can fight against sexual harm:

1. Prevention through protection and education
2. Helping those who have been affected by sexual harm
3. Spreading the word in the community as a vehicle to spread the Gospel

We offer practical and interactive trainings that cover each of these 3 areas from a biblical perspective. Our goal is to provide an understanding of the problem of sexual harm, what needs to be done about it, and the tools to begin to do it within the context of our unique faith communities.

Levanta La Voz is an international ministry dedicated to training faith communities to prevent and respond to sexual harm, both as individuals and as organizations.
